in the red light region, that only occurs if the material is treated at higher than 1000° C. The material is not photoluminescent in the infrared region as is the nanocomposite material defined by the present claims. Moreover, the material does not show infrared absorbance as does the claimed nanocomposite material. Consequently, Mutti does not describe the claimed subject matter within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. § 102. Neither are there any suggestions, reasons or motivation in Mutti whereby a person skilled in the art would arrive at the process of producing the product or the product itself as defined in the present claims. Nothing would lead a person having ordinary skill in the art to modify the Mutti substances so as to have photoluminescence in the red light region or to create a material having photoluminescence in the infrared region at ambient temperature and having infrared absorbance.

For the reasons set forth above, applicants respectfully submit that the rejections are not proper and should be withdrawn.

Favorable action at the Examiner's earliest convenience is respectfully requested.

Respectfully submitted,

SMITH, GAMBRELL & RUSSELL, LLP
